Terms Explained:

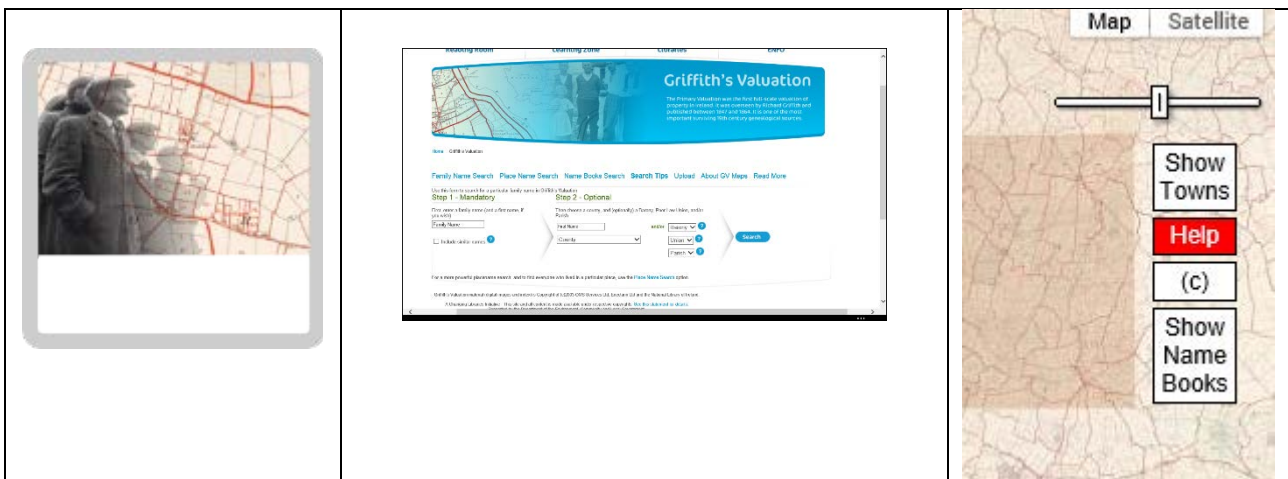

BARONY: There are 331 Barony divisions in Ireland, this is thought to be originally a Norman Land Unit. A county has on average between 7 and 10 Baronies and this may differ in cases. Baronies may differ in size and can extend into other counties. Baronies no longer utilised.

UNIONS: The union was introduced as the most basic unit of Administration under the Poor Laws System in 1838 as the Barony and Parish Units were felt to be unsatisfactory because of their unequal sizes. Initially the country was divided into 130 Unions and this was adjusted to create smaller unit sizes so that by 1850 there were 163. Unions no longer exist as an administration unit.

PARISH: Refers to CIVIL Parishes rather than Churches Parishes, but were actually initially religious divisions. Most Church Of Ireland Parishes correspond to a Civil Parish, though Catholic Parishes may extend over more than one Civil Parish. Civil Parishes vary in size and are grouped together to form a Barony.
